

2infamouz invites music producers, sound engineers, and others knowledgeable about the music industry to be involved in the content of www.2infamous4you.net. This involvement is not a paid service, but can be exchanged for promotion of said persons other work including music, websites, or anything else that is not obscene or regarded as inappropriate for the website. We will be accepting article submissions that will be reviewed thoroughly before publication on the site. Articles should relate to the following topics:

- Music Production
- Music Theory
- Marketing and Networking of Musical Work
- Audio Engineering Tutorials and Guides
- Music Gear Reviews (ie; synthesizers, audio interfaces, etc)

Article Requirements

Articles should be unique content, and not replications of previous works from the author or anyone else.

There is no maximum length, but all articles should be a minimum of 3 paragraphs.

All articles should include accurate information, and should not be misleading or fabricated.

Promotional Incentive

In exchange for quality articles we are offering promotion of the authors other works, which can include musical pieces, other articles, websites, etc. The only limitation on promotion is that the material promoted is not obscene. The only information disclosed about the author will be information that has been requested to be disclosed such as name, contact info (if requested by said author), and any credentials that the author wishes to be disclosed.

Agreement

Upon submitting an article to 2infamouz, you are agreeing that the article can be published and viewed publicly on www.2infamous4you.net. 2infamouz agrees to remove the article at any time if requested by the author. 2infamouz holds no liability regarding copyrighted work and will not be responsible for determining the originality of submitted works.

Submitting an Article

If you're interested in submitting an article to 2infamouz in exchange for promotion, send a copy of this PDF file along with the article in an email to 2infamouz@gmail.com. In the email please explain what material you wish to have promoted on the articles page, along with any other information that should be included on the page. Email submissions will be responded to upon review, and published on the website if they meet all of the required criteria.
